

Coal Miners' Union Orders Big Strike Beginning April 1

PUBLIC NOT WORRIED,

Outlast Shutdown.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Indianapolis, Ind., March 21.—Suspension of work by all union coal miners at midnight, March 31, was ordered today by officers of the United Mine Workers of America, the call being the first ever issued for both bituminous and anthracite workers to walk out simultaneously. Six hundred thousand men will be directly affected by the order, it was estimated officially. The suspension, the order provided, will continue until stopped by union officials.

The order, which was sent to the 3,000 local unions, directed the miners to give the operators their fullest co-operation in the protection of mine property and counselled against violence and violations of the law. In addition to affecting all union miners in the United States, the order also directed approximately 6,850 union men in western Canada to join in the walkout but did not apply to 14,000 miners in Nova Scotia.

Never before in the history of the coal industry has a suspension or strike order called for cessation of work by all union miners in the United States. In the past, wage contracts in the bituminous and anthracite fields have not expired at the same time but a complete tie-up in union fields was considered during the great anthracite strike in 1902.

A sympathetic strike by the bituminous miners at that time was rejected by the union's convention, it being argued that the soft coal workers were bound by a contract.

Follows Strike Vote.
The issuance of the call came with the recent strike vote of soft-coal miners not completely tabulated but it was said officially that the work of the union's board of fellows had prothe union's board of miners had progressed to such a point as to show every field voting overwhelmingly in favor of a suspension. Indications were that nine-tenths of the miners favored the walkout.

Cessation of the suspension, in whole or part, is left to the union's policy committee, composed of more than 100 union officials, which will meet in Cleveland Friday to consider plans for conducting the strike. Outstanding among the questions to be considered by the committee is that of negotiating single state wage agreements.

On this question seems certain with indications that a majority will oppose the single state proposition. The suspension order, which said blame for the walkout in the soft coal fields rested

VOTE ON ARMY CUT IS EXPECTED TODAY

Washington, March 21.—(After approving a clause in the army appropriation bill which provides that by July 1 the number of regular army officers must be reduced from approximately 13,000 to 11,000, the house adjourned late today as it was about to plunge into a fight over the enlisted strength. A vote on proposals to slash the enlisted personnel, which now approximates 133,000, exclusive of 7,000 Philippine scouts, to 115,000 or less, is expected to be reached tomorrow.

Standing by the recommendations of the subcommittee which drafted the bill, the house in quick succession rejected three amendments which sought to fix the officer strength at different levels. By a vote of 142 to 98 an amendment by Chairman Kahn, of the military affairs committee to provide pay for 13,000 officers during the coming fiscal year was defeated. An amendment by Representative Sisson, Mississippi, a democratic member of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, to cut the number of officers to 9,000 was snuffed under 180 to 40, while a proposal by Representative Hull, Iowa, a republican member of the military affairs committee, to fix the maximum at 12,000 was voted down, 115 to 65.

When the house quit work for the day it had before it a series of amendments which would increase the allowance for the officers' reserve corps. The bill carries $250,000 for salaries—an inadequate amount in the opinion of Representative Hill, Maryland; Crago, Pennsylvania, and Rogers, Massachusetts, all republicans, who proposed increases of the item in varying amounts.

Once these amendments are disposed of, the bill will be ready for a skirmish over the enlisted strength. The framers of the bill have provided for a reduction to 115,000, exclusive of the 7,000 Philippine scouts. Mr. Kahn, who has declared his approval of war department recommendations for 150,000 men, has indicated he will not object to resumption of pay for a force of that size, while Mr. Sisson has announced he will propose that the enlisted personnel be cut to 100,000.

HARDING TO FIGHT NAVY CUT.

Washington, March 21.—The administration will oppose with all its strength the efforts of congress to cut the personnel of the navy from 107,000 to 65,000.

The president, it was officially stated at the white house, believes that such a reduction would throw out of joint the 5-5-3 naval ratio established by the war conference and give America an inferior navy.

He would view with disappointment any attempt by the appropriations committee to establish the 65,000 figure, as the committee had planned.

The reduced personnel, in the view of the president, would impair the efficiency of the fleet to such an extent that it could no longer be relied upon for adequate protection. An effort is being made to effect a compromise in the house, where the appropriation bill is now under consideration, under which the personnel would be 85,000, the minimum number which administrative officers are willing to accept.

The president is hopeful this effort will succeed.

The administration viewpoint was also set forth in a speech to the senate Tuesday by Senator Poinsett, of Washington, chairman of the naval affairs committee. Poinsett warned that the reductions now contemplated

15-Year-Old Girl Accuses Rickard On Witness Stand

Washington, March 21.—An under-sized, tousled haired school girl in short dresses, just over 15 years old, sat in a witness chair in supreme court for more than two hours today and told Justice Wasservogel and a jury of alleged assaults upon her by George L. (Tex) Rickard, internationally-known sports promoter.

As she recited her story in a piping voice the man who with arms folded, staring at her. Only occasionally did he relax and then to whisper in his counsel's ear or to make notes with a pencil.

The girl told how she had been introduced to Rickard by her girl chum last summer at the swimming pool in Madison Square Garden. He gave them both money, she said, and told them to come and see him at his office in the tower of the building. Upon their visit, she testified, Rickard gave them a note and asked them to call at an apartment in West Forty-seventh street. They called at the apartment later and there the alleged assault took place. He gave them each $10, she said, and asked them to call again.

Other visits.

Then followed a story of other visits, all but one when she was alone, in company with the other girl. These visits covered several months. She said Rickard also tried to assault the other girl but that she repulsed him. The amount of money he gave them, she said, varied from time to time, ranging from $5 to $20.

"After each alleged assault, the girl testified, the promoter asked them to tell nothing of what had happened. Once she asked Rickard to help get her brother out of jail in Milwaukee, where he had been arrested for stealing. Rickard promised to help, she said, and later she brought her mother to see him.

A letter was introduced in evidence, alleged to have been written to the would destroy the purpose of the naval reduction treaty and put America in a position inferior to either Britain or Japan.

"Instead of having the 5-5-3 ratio, we would have a ratio of 5-3-2, with this country having a smaller fleet than any great power," said Poinsett.

Case Continued.

The girl was still on the stand when adjournment was taken until tomorrow. In outlining the case to the jury, Ferdinand Pecora, assistant district attorney, said that the state would prove when the news of Rickard's arrest in connection with alleged assaults on other girls was printed, these two girls met him by telephone appointment and that in an automobile ride for more than an hour through Central park, he urged them to tell the authorities nothing of what had happened. He told them, Mr. Pecora said, to say if necessary that "another man did it." He warned that if they told "they would be sent away" until they were 18 years old and that he would give them no more money.

The girls promised that they would obey Mr. Pecora said.

After adjournment, Rickard was led back over "the bridge of sighs" to Tombs prison, where his cell mate is Alfred E. Lindsay, alleged swindler of wealthy society women.

SENATE MAY DELAY VISIT TO SHOALS

Washington, March 21.—A possibility developed today that the trip to Muscle Shoals, Ala., of the senate agricultural committee might be postponed and that the members might not leave next Saturday night as has been planned.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the republican leader, has been urging a postponement of the inspection trip on the ground that the absence of fifteen or sixteen senators might prevent the senate from maintaining a quorum and thus tie up not only debate on the armament conference treaty of the bureau.

It was learned today that Senator Lodge has been urging Chairman Norris, of the agricultural committee, to defer the trip at least until after dis-

First Car of Dried Sweet Potatoes Shipped From Senoia

Senoia, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) Senoia's first car of dried sweet potatoes was shipped today to a large wholesale house in Boston, Mass. The car contained 350 bushels of potatoes of the famous Nancy Hall variety.

Erby Coats, the shipper, stated he was offered a fair price for them and may ship several more cars.

The farmers around Senoia are preparing to raise large quantities of potatoes, onions and peanuts this year as money crops, many of them returning to plant any cotton.

Did You Know That We Handle More Than Fifty Kinds and Styles of Cheese?

CHEESE IS ONE OF THE MOST NOURISHING OF FOODS

Professor Charles E. Shoh in his book, "Nutrition," declares: "One pound of cheese contains as much nourishment as one and one-half pounds of lean meat and six ounces of cheese with twenty-four ounces of bread will supply all the food nutrients required by a twenty-four hour day by an average grown-up individual."

Dieticians are all agreed that cheese is one of the most valuable foods man can eat, containing as it does, the essential vitamins, the famous fat soluble A and the water soluble B about which we hear so much nowadays.

Without an adequate supply of these two vitamins the human body cannot grow as it should or keep in a state of health.

Gentlemen: I feel that I should like to add my praise with other food merchants as to the good results constantly obtained through the advertising columns of the Constitution.

When I opened my new store in Inman Park I used all three daily papers for three weeks. But from the results I was able to trace to The Constitution I soon found that it was necessary only to use that one paper. For some time, now, I have been using The Constitution exclusively.

For years I have depended upon The Constitution as my main advertising medium, and have never been disappointed in its "pulling power." Its results have always been good, and so I have concluded that your paper is the best pure food medium for me.

Most truly yours,

G.O.P. Administration Worried By Congress

Bonus and Treaty Attacks
Provided Sharp Irritants for Harding in White House.

Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, March 21.—(By Constitution Bureau.)—With bonus legislation going contrary to the chief executive's wishes in the house and with the four-power pact under fire in the senate, the atmosphere around the white house today is taking on more of the Wilson administration color than was thought possible by republicans six months ago.

Leaders of the majority party in both branches of congress have expressed little fears of either of the two measures failing to pass. What they do fear, however, is the general changed aspect the measure will reveal after going through the process of amendment evolution, which is exercised with great freedom by congressmen and senators alike—regardless of any stated policy of the party in power.

This "process of amendment evolution," for which proponents of any bill have an antipathy, gives appearance today of impending danger to the treaty.

Harding Worried.
Heretofore, President Harding has not bothered himself about probable amendments to ratification of the four-power pact, on the contrary expressing himself as not seriously opposed to any "reasonable interpretation" of certain articles contained therein. But following a conference at the white house yesterday with members of the senate the president is quoted as frankly declaring his opposition to any reservations when it is ratified.

The chief reservation now before the body called by its supporters the "no alliance reservation," seeks to put the United States on record as not committed to use its armed forces in the event of international trouble in the Pacific and the Far East, has been reported to the senate by the foreign relations committee and has strong support among republican senators. The author of the reservation is Senator Brandegee, and his chief ally among southern democrats is Senator Watson, of Georgia.

Confers With Senators.

The senators who called on the president were Lodge, chairman of the committee on foreign relations and one of the delegation to the recent arms conference. Curtis, republican whip, and McCormick, chairman of the republican senatorial campaign committee. It was explained that while the presence of Mr. Adams and Senator McCormick naturally suggested that this year's political campaign was discussed, the chief business of the visit to President Harding was to explain the dangers that confronted the four-power treaty. It was evident, however, from what was said that the president and his visitors thought that the accomplishments of the arms conference would be the principal issue in most of the contests for the senate and the house.

President Harding said frankly that he would like to have the four-power treaty ratified by the senate without reservation. Senators Lodge and Curtis told him that while their poll of the senate showed sixty-four senators favorable to the treaty, five of these would vote against ratification unless the Brandegee reservation was adopted. Lodge said that a change of three votes from the showing of the poll would defeat ratification.

Might Start Row.

From statements given out when his callers left, it is not known what final action the president will invoke; he may yet throw the senate into a turmoil by specifically designating to what extent he is willing to make concessions. And such a move is looked upon by certain factions as being the action necessary to precipitate a duplication of the stormy days experienced by President Wilson during his last year in office.

As chairman of the senatorial campaign committee Mr. McCormick will have general charge of the canvass of more than thirty candidates for the senate, who will go before the electorate in November. He is chairman of the national committee. Mr. Adams will have charge of the work of congress for both senate and house along the lines of national issues. Their presence at the white house conference was significant of the realization by party leaders of the intention of the democrats to wage the contest this year on the issue that the present congress as a do-nothing congress. The republican party leaders are anxious to have the accomplishments of the arms conference made the chief issue, and seem to be of the opinion that, whether they wish it or not, adoption of the treaties affecting the relations of this government with those of Great Britain, Japan and other nations will be discussed throughout the country in connection with the arms contest.

Landslide Not Expected.
No such sweeping victory as came to the republican party in 1920 is expected by even the most optimistic republican leaders. In some quarters the view prevails that the republican majority of more than eighty in the house will be wiped out. Several weeks ago this opinion was widespread, but inquiry indicates that the situation from a republican standpoint is more favorable, although the expectation is that the republican majority in the house will be considerably reduced.

The chief assets upon which the party depends for victory are the accomplishments of the arms conference and the popularity of President Harding, who does not seem to be included in the criticism aimed at the senate and the house for their slowness in enacting legislation. The president is credited with sharing the irritation over the tardiness of congress. His feeling is said to be aimed more at the senate, controlled by his old associates, than at the house.

Would Stand Clear.
The president, however, is endeavoring to maintain a position that will acquit him of any attempt to coerce congress into taking action or of executive usurpation of the functions of the legislative branch. When he went before the senate last year to urge postponement of the soldier bonus legislation, he did so at the solicitation of congressional leaders who confessed lack of leadership and desired the president to assume the responsibility for leading the party out of the difficulty in which it found itself through endangering the safety of the treasury by its bonus program. His attitude when house leaders called on him to discuss the pending bonus bill, was practically similar. He stood by the letter he had written to Chairman Fordney in which he made it clear that the proposal of the committee to raise the bonus money by several additional forms of direct taxation would not be acceptable to him and that he favored the imposition of a sales tax as the simplest way out of the difficulty.

It was partly to relieve him of any charge that he was seeking to influence the senate in its consideration of the four-power treaty that the president went to Florida on the vacation from which he returned yesterday.

NEGRO LABORER IS SMOTHERED AT CITY DUMP

Julius Hutchins, a negro laborer in the employ of the city, was smothered to death late Tuesday afternoon when he was buried beneath approximately three tons of dirt at a city dumping ground at Georgia avenue and Conally street.

Hutchins and a number of other workmen were at the foot of a high embankment fresh dirt when it collapsed without warning. Richard Craig, one of the laborers, was partly buried with the tumbling soil, but was extricated quickly.

Twenty laborers worked feverishly for about twenty minutes to dig Hutchins from beneath the cayen. An ambulance was summoned from Grady hospital but the workman was smothered before his diggers could reach him.

eed Dr. Gilbert when the latter's resignation is accepted by Governor Hardwick, to whom it was forwarded. John Armistead, who announced as a candidate to succeed himself, has been connected with the tax receiver's office for the past twelve years. He has been actively in charge of the office for the past few years on account of the failing health of his father, who died Saturday.

Mr. Arnold, who announced Tuesday night, has lived in Atlanta for 35 years, and now resides at 204 Lee street. He has been connected with the railway mail service for the past 40 years. Mr. Arnold has a number of friends throughout the county who have urged him to enter the race, and he has consented to make it, he declared Tuesday.

Dr. Gilbert's Statement.

The following statement was made Tuesday by Dr. Gilbert, after news of his decision to resign was given several days ago in The Constitution:

"I wish to nominate John Armistead, son of John T. Armistead, to fill temporarily his father's office until Mr. Armistead's successor can be elected."

"In doing so I wish to state that for several years my friends have been urging me from time to time to offer as a candidate for the position filled by Mr. Armistead, but I have consistently refused to do so. Due to the fact, not only from the high personal regard I have always entertained for Mr. Armistead, but also that he was a confederate veteran, who, in defense of his southern land, was shot down on the field of honor, and bearing in mind that my own father was one of these self-same veterans, I could not find it in my heart to oppose him."

"I always did state, though, to my friends that if Mr. Armistead should voluntarily retire, leaving the field open to younger men, that I would offer myself for the position. Owing to the vacancy now existing in the office, and realizing that the candidates to fill the same will be men nearer my age, I wish to state that I am going to be a candidate for the position, but I felt it was nothing but due Mr. Armistead's family that his son should fill this position until his successor had been elected.

"Realizing that I should not remain on the board, and at the same time be an active candidate for the position of tax receiver, I wish also to tender to you, my colleagues, my resignation from the board, to become effective as soon as accepted by the governor, so that my successor on the board of county commissioners can be elected at the same time that the election for tax receiver is held, thereby saving the taxpayers the expense of two elections."

"It is impossible for me to say to you, my colleagues, how much I appreciate the loyalty and support you have given me while on the board. You have honored me twice by making me chairman of this body, an honor that comes to but

In One Great Service

Even if operated alone in the White Star Line's service to Cherbourg and Southampton, the new 56,000-ton Majestic, largest ship in the world, would bring to it a commanding distinction.

But when this service includes, besides the world's largest ship, the new 34,000-ton Homeric, whose luxurious innovations were acclaimed on her first visit to New York this spring, and the far-famed and magnificent Olympic, it becomes inevitably the chosen goal of luxurious trans-Atlantic travel.

This service is no less remarkable for its regularity than for the individual size and splendor of its ships. Travelers who formerly waited an Olympic sailing date to channel ports may now sail any week on one of these great ships.

Regular weekly sailings to Liverpool via Queenstown with the Adriatic, Baltic, Celtic and Cadiz, each over 20,000 tons. This service appeals especially to families and tourist parties. You land near the beautiful Lake District, the Shakespeare Country, and the Mountains of North Wales.

With our long experience in operating famous trans-Atlantic liners, we maintain standards of distinction on every voyage and cruise. Booklets and detailed information sent on request.

Twenty Questions About OILDAG

The World's Best Lubricant

What it is—What it does—How it does it

By DR. E. G. ACHESON

What is Oildag?

1. Oildag is a compound of deflocculated graphite and oil.

What is "deflocculated" graphite?

2. Graphite reduced to particles so small that they cannot be seen with the highest powers of the ordinary microscope. Herein lies the secret of Oildag's value.

What is the object of this ultra-microscopic subdivision of the graphite?

3. Graphite in this deflocculated condition is capable of remaining evenly diffused in liquids lighter than itself for an indefinite period, always provided that the liquid is free of acid, alkali or any other electrolyte.

Why does it not settle?

4. That question involves a matter upon which some of the greatest scientific minds of the day have not yet come to agreement. In the opinion of some, the graphite is reduced to molecular fineness; but, whatever the reason, the remarkable fact that it does not settle is indisputable.

Is the graphite dissolved?

5. No; it still remains solid matter, though its particles are infinitesimally small. This extraordinary property of remaining solid while acting like a liquid is the basis of Oildag's operation.

What is Oildag used for?

6. To lubricate engines and machinery.

Will it lubricate my automobile as well as a high grade oil I am now using?

7. It will do it better than the very best oil you can buy.

How will I be able to know it is lubricating better than the oil I have been using?

8. By the very decided changes you will note in the working of the car. When using Oildag properly you will have:

1. Clean spark plugs.
2. Decreased carbon deposits in the cylinders.
3. More power from the gasoline consumed.
4. Climb grades on "high" you formerly took on "low."
5. Less lubricant required.
6. No smoke from exhaust.
7. No wear of piston rings, cylinder walls or bearings.
8. Increased life of car.
9. Repair bills reduced if not entirely eliminated.

These are remarkable claims. They certainly strike the high points and I would like to know how it is possible for Oildag to produce such results. How is it done?

9. Before answering your question let us try to account for troubles you are now very likely experiencing. Dirty spark plugs, carbon deposits and smoke from the exhaust are largely due to lubricating oil getting by the piston rings into the combustion chamber, where the oil is decomposed, and this same act of passing the rings wastes the oil. The wear of the piston rings, cylinder walls and bearings is positive evidence the oil you are using does not at all times keep the sliding metal surfaces separated; hence it is not always lubricating.

That seems to me to be a clear statement of causes and effects, but how can Oildag cure these evils?

10. By putting anti-friction surfaces on the rubbing parts of the engine. These remarkable surfaces are called "graphoid" surfaces.

How are they produced?

11. When using Oildag, particles of the deflocculated graphite come in actual contact with the metal surfaces the Oildag is lubricating. When this occurs the particles adhere firmly to the metal, and in due time the entire surface of the metal is covered with a layer of these graphite particles.

Will they not be rubbed off by the moving metal?

12. By careful tests it has been proved it required two and a half hours' violent rubbing to remove graphoid surfaces, while they were being pressed together with a pressure of nine hundred pounds per square inch. Several instances have occurred where automobiles have run on ordinary roads distances up to sixty miles without any oil being used. They ran on dry graphoid surfaces.

That being the case it would not be necessary to continue the use of Oildag after the graphoid surfaces have formed. Would it?

13. It would not be wise to cut off all supply of Oildag, for while these surfaces have great endurance, it is difficult to think they will not in time wear away, and when it would occur would be uncertain; hence for safety's sake a small amount of free deflocculated graphite should be present to repair injuries to the surfaces. Continue the use of Oildag as you would oil.

Is there any grit in Oildag?

14. Not any. The graphite from which the deflocculated product is made is created in an electric furnace, at a temperature that is the highest produced on earth, with the single exception of the electric arc. This is a temperature at which every known substance, with the exception of carbon, is converted into vapor and passes off into the atmosphere.

Cannot these graphoid surfaces be made with natural graphite, such as is dug out of the ground, or the small flake graphite found in rocks?

15. Natural graphite always contains impurities which injure it as a lubricant. The graphoid surfaces cannot be formed with particles of graphite larger than those known as deflocculated, these being, in fact, molecules. A mass or particle consisting of a number of graphite molecules, even if so small as to be seen with difficulty, will not adhere to a metal surface so firmly that it cannot be wiped or rubbed off, whereas a single molecule of graphite will.

Does this deflocculated graphite enter into the metals to produce the graphoid surface?

16. No; it remains entirely on the surface, where it is held by molecular forces in the state known as adsorption. It is quite evident that so long as this surface of molecular graphite remains the metals cannot wear away.

Can you tell by eyesight when a graphoid surface has been formed?

17. It is not easy to distinguish a graphoid surface and particularly difficult when formed on iron, as the coating is exceedingly thin and the color much the same as the iron.

Will not graphoid surfaces decrease the clearance spaces, make closer fits and increase the liability of heated bearings?

18. A graphoid surface surrounding a shaft will increase the diameter less than one two-hundred-thousandth part of an inch. This increase need not be considered.

Will Oildag work equally well with bearings of any metal?

19. Yes; it does not act chemically on the metals.

Is Oildag suitable to a "synphon" system of lubrication?

20. Yes. It has been proved by an eminent English authority that deflocculated graphite synphon also perfectly with the oil carrying it.

Mr. Hoover says—

"Our transportation facilities are below the needs of our country, and unless we have a quick resumption of construction, the whole community—agricultural, commercial and industrial—will be gasping from a strangulation caused by insufficient transportation the moment that our business activities resume."

"We paid tremendous sums in commercial losses and unemployment in consequence (of transportation shortages). We laid it on the war. We should lay it on our lack of foresight and antagonism to railroads."

"We must build an extension of lines, including terminal facilities, additional sidings, etc., every year equal to the construction of a new railway from New York to San Francisco."

"... Since we entered the war in 1917, we have constructed at least 10,000 miles of railways less than our increasing population and economic development called for, and we are behind in rolling stock by about 4,000 locomotives and 200,000 cars."

"I wish to emphasize that unless we can have an immediate resumption of construction and equipment, our commercial community will pay treble the cost of the whole of them in the losses of a single season."

"Obviously we must maintain the average rate that will support our transportation systems adequately."

"A great deal has been said about the inefficiency of our railway system. I do not sympathize with these statements. Comparison with foreign railways will demonstrate that our railways are of higher standards, better in methods than others, and are growing in efficiency."

From the statement of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, February 21st 1922.

The Situation of the N., C. & St. L. Ry.

This Company agrees with Mr. Hoover that the carriers should, if possible, in the interest of the public, prepare now in this period of adjustment for that revival of business which is sure to come. However, so far as this Company is concerned, increased expenses and reduced revenues have not only made improvements to the transportation machine impossible, but have actually forced serious curtailment in maintenance of existing roadway and equipment.

Mr. Hoover referred to the "perilous closeness" of present earnings to fixed expenses. In 1921 our revenues were much less than our operating expenses and fixed charges. Not one cent was earned for the investors in the Company's stock.

This Company is using its every resource to effect economies. It continues its efforts to obtain from the controlling Federal agency a reduction in wages which, if granted, will be passed on to the public in reduced rates.

This Railway, conservatively financed and managed, for nearly three-fourths of a century has furnished excellent transportation service to Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and Georgia.

If we are to continue to furnish adequate transportation there can be no reduction in railroad revenues without a similar reduction in expenses, and we must be relieved of such restrictions as deprive the management of the control of the details of railroad operation.

$100 CLUB GAINS MEMBERS IN DRIVE

Canvassers Ask Additional Subscriptions to Fill Atlanta's Quota in the Jewish Relief Drive.

With slightly more than $15,000 to raise in the five days remaining of the Atlanta American Jewish relief campaign, workers Tuesday continued active campaigning and obtained several members for the $100 club, by which it is expected to put Atlanta "over the top" of her $100,000 quota by Saturday evening.

The plan for the Hundred Dollar club is for present subscribers to the fund who can afford to do so, to increase their subscriptions by $100, to be paid at the rate of $10 each month for ten months. If 150 join in this plan, according to Arthur L. Harris, city chairman, the balance of Atlanta's quota will be raised by that method. In addition to this plan, other subscriptions, both from those who have not yet aided in the cause and from those who are financially unable to increase their previous subscription by $100, are also sought, and although the results of Tuesday's canvass were not tabulated, indications are that it was successful.

As illustrative of how a large number of men are increasing their subscriptions, Mr. Harris announced that Sam E. Finley had voluntarily increased his $100 donation to $250. Other large unsolicited subscriptions that were sent to Mr. Harris at his headquarters in room 115, Piedmont hotel, include a $100 subscription from Judge E. C. Kontz, a $100 subscription from his wife, Mrs. E. C. Kontz, a $100 subscription from the Keely company, and a $50 subscription from the Diamond Holdfast company.

Mr. Harris Tuesday praised the devotion of the assistants in the city and state headquarters to the cause. These assistants, Miss Ida Goldstein, Miss Anna Pfeiffer, Miss Nan Cramer and Mrs. William Hellman, he said, had not only given liberally to the cause of the helpless orphans in money, but they had also worked for its success with such wholehearted loyalty that their service deserved recognition.

Armand May, state chairman, announced Tuesday that everywhere over Georgia the campaign is progressing with great rapidity. Athens has nearly reached her quota. Macon and Savannah are rapidly approaching their goal lines and the smaller cities are doing equally as well. A. D. G. Cohn, of New York, southern field director of the campaign, is now in Macon assisting in the campaign there.

Chance Murder Trial is Begun In Millen Court

Five Men Charged With the Slaying of Watson Allen in Jenkins.

Millen, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) Charged with having murdered Watson Allen on Christmas day, R. H. Chance, justice of peace; his son, Roscoe Chance, Sidney Rowe and Carey Rowe, nephews of the elder Chance, and W. R. Lewis, his stepson, were placed on trial here today in Jenkins superior court, the state testing late this afternoon.

The case against the justice of the peace was first called. The difficulty which led to the killing arose over the use of an old public road running through a place bought by Allen just before the shooting. The road at one time was used as a public road, but the state had built the public road around another way and the use of the old road as such had been discontinued. This old road, it is said, was a short cut to a field owned by the Chances, but had been closed by Allen.

Riddle Body.
On the afternoon of the shooting Chance sent two negroes, it was testified, to see if Allen was at home, and the negroes, finding him there, returned and reported it to Chance. The five defendants immediately drove over to the home of Allen and on approaching the house Allen opened fire on them and they returned the fire, riddling the body of Allen, who was in his house, it was stated. The house was riddled with buckshot and bullets from a high-powered rifle which passed through four walls. Roscoe Chance and Carey Rowe were shot in the side with a shotgun. Immediately after the shooting the defendants came here and surrendered to Sheriff F. A. Marbach. They waived preliminary hearing and have been in jail since the day of the shooting.

Counsel.

Attorneys representing the defense are E. K. Overstreet, Sylvania; G. E. Dekie, W. Woodrum and E. G. Weathers, Millen. Those appearing for the prosecution are A. S. Anderson, solicitor-general; Judge H. A. Boykin, Sylvania; R. E. Moore, Statesboro, and J. A. Dixon, Millen. The entire morning was consumed in a fight over the jury, 107 extra veniremen were drawn. The defense scored the first point when 43 of the list were struck because they served as jurors last week.

Southern Trade Commission Sails For Europe May 2

Washington, March 21.—The southern commercial congress international trade commission to Europe will leave New York May 2, according to the itinerary made public today at the organization's offices here.

The commission, made up of representatives of commercial organizations, corporations, municipalities and states of the south, it was said, will make an intensive investigation of conditions in an effort to develop direct commercial and financial contracts between southern ports and European markets. Special attention will be directed toward the Baltic States and Central Europe, with foreign trade areas heretofore neglected, according to the announcement. Northern Italy, Switzerland, Paris and London also will be visited. The commission, headed by Thomas R. Preston, president, and Clarence J. Owens, director-general of the southern commercial congress, is expected to return to the United States July 3.

SINGING RALLY FOR MEMORIAL DAY IN ATHENS

Athens, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Clarke county commissioners held Tuesday morning, a singing rally here on Memorial day in April was planned. The commissioners have offered the use of the superior courthouse for the occasion and the singing service will be under the auspices of the Clarke County Choir association, and under the personal direction of Dr. J. L. Pendleton. The Athens Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary, E. W. Carroll, will cooperate with the Clarke County Choir association in making the song service one of the biggest things ever staged in Athens. Tentative plans were made at the commissioners meeting fixed the hour for the singing at from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Other matters taken up by the commissioners Tuesday were with reference to the highways in the county, and certain routine business. Reports as to the progress of the top soiling on some of the highways and paving on others were made at the meeting. No final action was taken by the commissioners with reference to the date for the county bond election, the members holding off until some action is taken by the city, they said. About 40 per cent of all the peas grown in America are raised in Wisconsin. One year's production from 43,000 acres reached 43,500 tons.

BULGARIA REQUESTS CREDITS FROM LEAGUE

Washington, March 21.—Bulgaria, first of the enemy countries to claim the privilege, has applied to the financial commission of the league of nations for an extension to its businessmen of the credits to be available under the ter-Meulen plan.

The news received here from league quarters indicates that the application is being given careful consideration by the financial commission which regards it as of the first order of importance in initiating the ter-Meulen plan practically, whereas it has up to this moment been only theoretically discussed. In view of the impending Genoa conference, called to deal primarily with economic subjects, it is believed by foreign diplomats here that the financial commission will defer a decision upon the Bulgarian application until the close of the conference, which may interest itself in the matter.

Fifty Congressmen Petition President For War Prisoners

Washington, March 21.—Release of all war prisoners serving terms for expressions of opinion and not for overt acts was urged in a petition signed by fifty members of the house of representatives and presented today to President Harding.

The joint amnesty committee of the American Civil Liberties union, in announcing the presentation of the petition, said that twenty children, whose fathers are in jail, would come here next month to make a personal appeal to the president. Representative Fish, of New York, who was awarded the croix de guerre for his war service and Representative Burke Cockran, also of New York, were among the members signing the petition. It expressed the earnest hope that the president would "proclaim at the earliest possible moment a general amnesty for all persons convicted under the espionage act and whose only offenses were in the nature of expressions of opinion and not of overt acts."

TO INVESTIGATE MYSTERY VESSEL FOUND WRECKED

New Orleans, March 21.—A government cutter probably will be sent to the wrecked sailing vessel, discovered recently bottom up near Isle Dernier, off the south Louisiana coast, in an effort to learn the identity of the boat and the fate of its crew, according to local customs officials today.

Claude Blanceq, of the steamship division of the customs service, said the cutter probably would be dispatched from Galveston.

Officials today began a search of their records, hoping to find some clue to guide them in identifying the vessel, a lumber carrier, which was sighted by the Louisiana conservation commission's boat, Opelousas. So far they have met with no success, and express the opinion that the vessel was not from this port.

The wreck was discovered last Friday and reported by Captain R. F. Gillen, master of the Opelousas. He said the boat was in ten feet of water, about one mile off shore. The water was too rough at the time to tow vessel, about 100 feet long, with get close to the wreck. Captain Gillen described the ship as an old sail-marked H-1 and up to H-6.

Hearty Response Is Given Appeal Of Jobless Soldiers

Hearty response by Atlanta employers to the appeal of the American Legion for jobs for the jobless veterans of the world war added new enthusiasm to the legionnaires' employment campaign Tuesday. Not less than 100 veterans were given employment during the day, while the tent at Five Points remained crowded throughout Tuesday with jobseekers.

Since Monday more than 400 have been applied there and their one desire is work—any kind of work at any kind of price. They simply want a chance to earn their daily bread.

The work will be continued through Wednesday, when Coleman post will have charge of the tent. Robert G. Stephens, commander of the post, will be in charge and his chief lieutenant will be Dean Johnson, of St. Philip's cathedral, a world war veteran and enthusiastic legion worker.

Commander Stephens has already put in some time for the jobless. "I had assurances from one of the biggest employers of labor in Georgia, who is beginning one of the greatest pieces of construction work here, that he would give me a job, and the pay will be satisfactory, too," said he.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies are co-operating actively with the legion in this campaign.

200,000 VETERANS FURNISHED JOBS.

Indianapolis, March 21.—A decrease of about 200,000 in the ranks of unemployed ex-servicemen was estimated today by Leonard Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion. The decrease is due, he said, to the drive for jobs for veterans which the legion is making.

Frederick, Md., was the first town to report 100 per cent employment among the veterans. Adjutant Bolles expressed satisfaction with the results of the first day's drive.

Every community is urged to place local men in jobs first. If there are more than enough for them, it is urged that the "legioners" be given work.

BUTLER "Y" MEMBERS CAMPAIGN PROGRESSES

The membership campaign at the colored Y. M. C. A. is still progressing with new members coming in each day. E. T. Tatum, a colored member of the Y. M. C. A. National board, brought in a number of new members Monday, and he stated that he would continue to work for the campaign.

The Progressive Bible class is growing each week. This class has an enrollment of sixty, and meets each Sunday at 2:30 o'clock in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. The course now in use is "Jesus and His Cause."

I have been to various Spas in Europe, as well as this country and have spent fully $30,000 fruitlessly in search of a cure for my stomach trouble. Naturally I lost faith in any remedy for my case. My wife's brother had taken May's Wonderful Remedy and he was cured. I tried it and am now entirely rid of that trouble. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jacobs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—(adv.)"

G. L. MILLER & CO. TO FINANCE HOTEL

New $600,000 Hotel to Be Erected Soon in Augusta Through Atlanta Financial Concern.

Augusta, Ga., March 21.—(Special.)—A contract for the construction of a modern commercial hotel here, which is to cost approximately $600,000, is assured following an announcement made today by Alexander & Grant, local real estate men, that the project is to be financed by G. L. Miller & Co., of Atlanta, and is to be leased by a corporation from the J. B. White estate.

The proposed hotel, it is understood, will consist of 180 rooms, is to be eight stories high and will have an opening on three streets.

DISTRICT MEETING PLANS DISCUSSED BY ROTARY CLUB

Plans for the eighth district Rotary conference, which will be held in Savannah on March 23 and 24, were discussed at the luncheon of the Atlanta Rotary club at the Capital City club Tuesday.

Various Rotarians were called on at the luncheon to impersonate the officers of the district, and to welcome the members to Savannah. Richard Smith, of Atlanta, impersonated District Governor John Turner, and extended his hearty welcome to the Atlanta delegation.

Charles Henry McIntosh, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and member of the Chicago Rotary club, was the principal speaker at the luncheon. His address was replete with the commercial wisdom gleaned by him during his long experience in the business world. T. G. Law, president of the club, had charge of the meeting.

RED CROSS LECTURES CONTINUE THIS WEEK

The daily lectures at 4 o'clock in social welfare, under the auspices of the Atlanta chapter, American Red Cross, will continue during the week. The topics are as follows:

Wednesday, "Care and Treatment of Insane." Thursday, "Dependent Children." Friday, "The Wayward and Delinquent." Saturday, "The Origin and Development of Organized Charity."

The lectures are given in conversational style by Alexander Johnson, of the division staff, American Red Cross.

BROTHERHOOD REPORTS ARE SHOWING PROGRESS

Reports from committees in charge of the brotherhood activities of the Evangelical Lutheran church of the Redeemer, Trinity and Capitol place, showing encouraging progress, were made Monday evening at a meeting of the brotherhood in the church.

Mrs. William R. Abigren, chairman of the entertainment committee, served supper to the brotherhood, after which the reports were made.

Announcement was made that Professor W. A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, will address the brotherhood at 7 o'clock next Monday evening. "Atlanta's School Program" will be his subject.

MRS. TOMLIN SUES TERMINALS FOR $75,000

Mrs. Katie Mae Tomlin brought suit for $75,000 in the city court of Atlanta against the railroads operating the Atlanta joint terminals to recover damages for the death of her husband, W. C. Tomlin, who lost his life in the yards of the companies while working as a car inspector in 1921.

The suit charges that both legs and one arm of Mr. Tomlin were mashed off and that he lived for several hours, suffering excruciating pain and agony, mental and physical.

Seeks Old Comrade.

Masonic Club Luncheon.

Important announcements regarding the national masonic club convention at Atlantic City in May will be made Wednesday at the weekly meeting of the masonic club. The club meets at the Peacock cafe at 12:30 o'clock.

Northcliffe Discusses Tumultuous Palestine

Wisdom of Retention of Indian Rule by Great Britain Questioned by Commentator.

Editor's Note: This is the final installment of an interview with Lord Northcliffe, noted British commentator, by Ferdinand Tuohy, upon completion of Lord Northcliffe's world tour.

BY FERDINAND TUOHY.
(Copyrighted by The Constitution and The New York World.)

"Whether the retention of our possessions in India is an advantage to Great Britain is a question much debated," Lord Northcliffe continued.

"Whether the British (Scotch mostly) who live in considerable numbers would not be more happily engaged in opening up the vast wealth of Australia is a subject which is more and more engaging the attention of those who have seen the whole of the British empire and not merely a part. Up to this time the welfare of India, the warding off of famine throughout the country, the introduction of irrigation, the building of roads and the furtherance of education, have been part and parcel of the creed of the average Englishman at home. India is not, and cannot be, ruled by the sword. The small handful of white men there could be wiped out in a moment if India were united, which it very obviously is not.

"I left India with a sigh of regret for the intense labors of Lord Reading and his helpers. Those of you who knew him at Washington are aware that, working often until midnight, he is always at his desk at 6 in the morning, and at this moment he is carrying out that same routine in Delhi, Simla, Calcutta and in the many great journeys he has to undertake.

Goes to Egypt.
"From India I went to Egypt, linked to India by the tie of Moslemism, where the desire for self-determination exists in a much more acute form.

We entered Egypt in 1882, sixteen years before you went to the Philippines. Egypt for thousands of years of history has never been self-governed till we came. But the Turks, who in their blundering way are among the world's rulers, had long looked upon Egypt as a province to be ruled by a native Egyptian. They have a few—fact, a good many—of the difficulties of India.

"If I ask, 'What have we offered it, the largest measure of self-government we have offered to colored people anywhere. The experiment will be made under Lord Allenby, if the extremists, whose weapons are the bomb and the gun, permit it.

"An entirely different problem, in which the United States is considerably interested, is the governing of Palestine. As a result of the war, the ungrateful and unprofitable task of looking after that very unhappy country devolved upon us. Exactly why any one should desire to emigrate to Palestine, which largely consists of stones, is difficult to fathom. Some Jews, who have the support of many believers in old testament prophecies, in many countries regard Palestine as their natural home. Our government issued a proclamation that by certain provisions Palestine shall be a home for the Jews. I did not in my visit there discover one single English or American Jew who had gone there to take up his residence. I did find that there is a Mohammedan and a Christian population numbering 700,000, with a Jewish population very much divided, numbering, about 70,000.

REV. W. G. CRAWLEY SPEAKS AT MEET OF M. E. PREACHERS

"The revival preacher must preach the preaching which God sends him forth to preach," declared Rev. W. G. Crawley, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, at Tuesday morning's meeting of Methodist preachers, held in Wesley Memorial church.

The meeting was attended by more than 20 Methodist preachers and was presided over by Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., presiding elder of the North Atlanta district. Among other matters brought forward was the further organization of the Methodist ministers and churches for the approaching city-wide revival.

Central Presbyterian Chorus Choir Plans Concert for Thursday

The chorus choir of the Central Presbyterian church will give a concert Thursday evening in the church auditorium, complimentary to the church congregation and their friends. James Alderson, who is leading organist at the Howard theater, is director of the choir.

An unusually attractive program, consisting of solo, duet and part songs, has been arranged for Thursday evening. During the rendering of the program selections will be given by the following soloists: Miss Mabel Whitney, Miss Louise Vining, Mr. Brown and Ed A. Werner.

It has been said that every possible necessity of a man's life, except the water he drinks, and the air he breathes, may be supplied either directly or indirectly through the use of petroleum products.

PHONE COMPANY OPENS STATEMENT ON RATES

Major E. F. Brown, plant engineer of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, was the last witness to testify Tuesday, and will be the first witness called Wednesday in the hearing started Tuesday morning before the state railroad commission on a rule nisi issued against the company by the commission, requiring the company to appear and show cause why its present exchange rates in Georgia should not be reduced. Major Brown occupied the stand nearly three hours Tuesday afternoon, during which he submitted a mass of detailed information to the commission covering the reconstruction plans of the company for the next five years.

The hearing, which is one of the most important rates cases brought before the commission in years, was begun Tuesday after representatives of the company, headed by Hunt Chipley, general counsel, had announced their readiness to proceed. Delegations from Atlanta, Columbus, Royston, Cave Spring, Rome, Macon and Cartersville were present to seek reductions in the present scale of rates, which was granted the company March 1, 1921, by the commission.

When the case was opened Chairman C. M. Chandler, of the commission, questioned the company representatives and the delegations concerning the time in which all evidence would be submitted. It was agreed, after discussion, that the company should proceed at once in submitting its evidence as to the rates of its properties, and that the dates could be arranged later for the submission of testimony as to other phases of the case. It was arranged that the matter of earnings and costs of operation, including wages, are to be submitted in detailed statistical form. It is expected, from the statements of all interested parties, that the case will last until May 1.

Investment $17,000,000.
The company's case was handled by Mr. Chipley, chief counsel, and A. A. Lawrence, of Savannah, and other officials of the company. In opening the case Mr. Chipley stated that the total average investment of the company in Georgia was $17,017,000.

He said total operating revenue was $3,940,000, and total expenses and reductions of $5,083,251. He said the net revenue amounted for the year December 31, 1921, to $836,070, which, he said, was a percentage per cent of net revenue to average investment of 5.2 per cent.

The company stated that if it had charged throughout the entire year 1921 the old rates, its net return would have been less than 1 per cent, being 65-100 of 1 per cent upon the average investment.

The company stated that the value of its property was in excess of its investment, which was the original cost of the property, the greater portion of it having been built before the war.

The company stated that the value of its property in its present condition is at least $22,000,000, and that it is an increase of 22 per cent over the original investment of the property, and that the return for 1921 on the value of the property would be at the rate of 4.6 per cent.

Made Extensions.

The company also showed that it had made extensions and additions to its property in Georgia during 1921 to the amount of $2,041,053.00, and that during the year it had connected 20,355 new subscribers.

The company also pointed out that there was construction in progress for additions and extensions amounting to $1,010,469, meaning that it had paid out that much for the construction of plant not yet in service, and that the value of one million and odd dollars does not appear either in the investment or in the appraisal.

Mr. Chipley furnished the names of the following real estate men of Georgia cities, who he said, would testify to appraisals of real estate in different cities, and that these witnesses would be the first to take the stand:

Atlanta, Forrest Adair; Blackshear, J. B. Truett; Augusta, John W. Dickey; Albany, Farmers' Land, Loan and Title company; Athens, Erwin & Co.; Brunswick, R. L. Phillips; Cordele, W. C. McKenzie; Dublin, Edgar G. Simmons; Gainesville, Walter Roper; Lumber City, J. J. Elder; Macon, Williamson Loan and Trust company; Rome, E. P. Harvey & Co.; Savannah, A. J. Garfunkel; Thomasville, W. M. Parker; Tifton, Keith Carson; Valdosta, J. J. Newman; Waycross, the Knight company.

To Call Contractor.

Mr. Chipley also announced he would call on A. J. Krebs, contractor of Atlanta, and T. Thornton Mayre, architect, of Atlanta, to testify at various times during the hearing as to construction costs. Mr. Chipley said he would call on the real estate men to testify as to their appraisals of the land value of the properties of the company in their cities. It was explained that the real estate men would simply give appraisals of the value of the company's land and would in no way give estimates as to valuation of the buildings.

Forrest Adair testified that the company's lands in Atlanta are worth $300,000. The other real estate men gave the following valuations in their respective cities: Mr. Truett, Blackshear, $4,000; Mr. Dickey, Augusta, $2,780; Farmers' Land, Loan and Title company, Albany, $13,500; Erwin & Co., Athens, $3,000; Mr. Phillips, Brunswick, $3,000.

Delegations from Atlanta, Columbus, Royston, Cave Spring, Rome, Macon and Cartersville were present to seek reductions in the present scale of rates, which was granted the company March 1, 1921, by the commission.

When the case was opened Chairman C. M. Chandler, of the commission, questioned the company representatives and the delegations concerning the time in which all evidence would be submitted. It was agreed, after discussion, that the company should proceed at once in submitting its evidence as to the rates of its properties, and that the dates could be arranged later for the submission of testimony as to other phases of the case. It was arranged that the matter of earnings and costs of operation, including wages, are to be submitted in detailed statistical form. It is expected, from the statements of all interested parties, that the case will last until May 1.

Investment $17,000,000.
The company's case was handled by Mr. Chipley, chief counsel, and A. A. Lawrence, of Savannah, and other officials of the company. In opening the case Mr. Chipley stated that the total average investment of the company in Georgia was $17,017,000.

He said total operating revenue was $3,940,000, and total expenses and reductions of $5,083,251. He said the net revenue amounted for the year December 31, 1921, to $836,070, which, he said, was a percentage per cent of net revenue to average investment of 5.2 per cent.

The company stated that if it had charged throughout the entire year 1921 the old rates, its net return would have been less than 1 per cent, being 65-100 of 1 per cent upon the average investment.

The company stated that the value of its property was in excess of its investment, which was the original cost of the property, the greater portion of it having been built before the war.

The company stated that the value of its property in its present condition is at least $22,000,000, and that it is an increase of 22 per cent over the original investment of the property, and that the return for 1921 on the value of the property would be at the rate of 4.6 per cent.

The company also showed that it had made extensions and additions to its property in Georgia during 1921 to the amount of $2,041,053.00, and that during the year it had connected 20,355 new subscribers.

Made Extensions.

The company also pointed out that there was construction in progress for additions and extensions amounting to $1,010,469, meaning that it had paid out that much for the construction of plant not yet in service, and that the value of one million and odd dollars does not appear either in the investment or in the appraisal.

Mr. Chipley furnished the names of the following real estate men of Georgia cities, who he said, would testify to appraisals of real estate in different cities, and that these witnesses would be the first to take the stand:

Atlanta, Forrest Adair; Blackshear, J. B. Truett; Augusta, John W. Dickey; Albany, Farmers' Land, Loan and Title company; Athens, Erwin & Co.; Brunswick, R. L. Phillips; Cordele, W. C. McKenzie; Dublin, Edgar G. Simmons; Gainesville, Walter Roper; Lumber City, J. J. Elder; Macon, Williamson Loan and Trust company; Rome, E. P. Harvey & Co.; Savannah, A. J. Garfunkel; Thomasville, W. M. Parker; Tifton, Keith Carson; Valdosta, J. J. Newman; Waycross, the Knight company.

To Call Contractor.

Mr. Chipley also announced he would call on A. J. Krebs, contractor of Atlanta, and T. Thornton Mayre, architect, of Atlanta, to testify at various times during the hearing as to construction costs. Mr. Chipley said he would call on the real estate men to testify as to their appraisals of the land value of the properties of the company in their cities. It was explained that the real estate men would simply give appraisals of the value of the company's land and would in no way give estimates as to valuation of the buildings.

Forrest Adair testified that the company's lands in Atlanta are worth $300,000. The other real estate men gave the following valuations in their respective cities: Mr. Truett, Blackshear, $4,000; Mr. Dickey, Augusta, $2,780; Farmers' Land, Loan and Title company, Albany, $13,500; Erwin & Co., Athens, $3,000; Mr. Phillips, Brunswick, $3,000.

GROVES ACCEPTS CONNECTION WITH ACME AD AGENCY

J. L. Groves, Jr., formerly connected with the advertising department of The Atlanta Constitution, has accepted a connection with the Acme Advertising agency of this city as an account executive.

Mr. Groves has been with The Constitution for the last ten months. Two years previous to that time he was in advertising agency work in Texas, where he is well known to the advertising fraternity of the southwest.

He is a graduate of the University of Missouri school of journalism. While in college he was prominent in athletics, being a member of both the football and track teams of Missouri university for three years. He is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity.

Mr. Groves, in leaving The Constitution, carries with him the very best of wishes for his new position.

On March 1 the Acme Advertising agency moved into larger quarters in the Cooper building, corner Spring and Luckie streets.

Asked for Depreciation.

Mr. Krebs was placed on the stand to testify as to reproduction value of the buildings located on the lands valued by the real estate men, and after the noon recess again resumed his statement. After finishing his statement Chairman Chandler requested Mr. Krebs to furnish the commission, if possible, an approximation of the annual current depreciation in types of buildings under consideration and to give this, if possible, in gross percentages for the future consideration of the commission.

Mr. Krebs called to the stand, submitted a mass of information relative to construction costs of the properties. He submitted plans of the company for improvements covering a five-year period, and was on the stand when the session was adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The city of Atlanta was represented by R. C. Turner, city electrician, who appeared, representing himself and other subscribers of the company; Macon was represented by City Attorney Harry Storrier; David C. Jones, secretary to the mayor, and R. Gilham, of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, Columbus was represented by H. C. McCutcheon, city attorney; Royston sent Sam Powers, Cave Springs sent A. O. America Gained When Gluck Quit Grand Opera For Concert, Says Writer

"America-at-large gained a great deal when Alma Gluck, several years ago, decided to abandon grand opera and devote her voice entirely to concert," said a writer in a leading musical journal this season, just after the return to the concert stage of the soprano who had been resting two years and devoting herself to her three children.

"For songs calling for expression through lovely coloring and tender feeling, for beautiful logic and wistful tone, there is none to challenge Alma Gluck. She is past mistress of this kind of singing, and her great success has been built upon the precious gift of expressing music simply. Great as she is in opera, there are few of the millions in America who have opportunity of hearing the Metropolitan company, but in concert Alma Gluck is being heard throughout the United States."

Mme. Gluck and her husband, the famous Efrem Zimbalist, appear together at the Auditorium Friday night. Each will have solo numbers and a group in which the voice and the violin support and augment each other. Seats are on sale at the store of the Cable Piano company.

DAY TOO COOL FOR ICY SHOWERS. SAY THESE FOUR

Four persons standing at the corner of Forsyth and Luckie streets Tuesday afternoon, were deluged in an unexpected shower of icy cold water, discolored with soot and other highly shaded particles, when a janitor in the Forsyth building let down an awning on the seventh floor that had been tied up for the last two weeks.

About 20 gallons of water, caught in the folds of the awning, fell upon the unsuspecting victims, spraying them from head to foot in an uncomfortable shower. One of the victims, Mrs. Milton Schwartz, of Birmingham, had just left a downtown department store with her husband, where she had purchased a new spring bonnet and cape. Both were caught in the current of murky water.

Others experiencing the deluge were Howard F. Thorn, of the M. C. Kiser real estate company, and Stuart Murray, proprietor of a cigar store in the Forsyth building.

These four entered the building and voiced indignant protests.

Spring Journalism Class Begins Work, At Emory University

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Spring term registrants in the class in Journalism of Emory university have started the pursuit of the art of newspaper writing and editing under the instruction of Dr. W. F. Melton, head of the department of English of the university. It was with a burst of excitement that the 25 would-be newspaper men of the class assembled for the first time Tuesday morning.

There are several reasons for this. One is that Dr. Melton is the first college professor south of the Mason and Dixon line to give a course in Journalism as a part of the college work. Another is that the class in Journalism has the privilege of gathering news for The Constitution one day every year.

Included in the registrants of the class are men who have done work on the college publications and newspaper work. Those who have been most active on the college publications and on newspapers are Clements, Tully, Baynard, Nixon, Lawson, Sawyer and Long.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

For hours Tuesday Henry Ford played hide and seek with the prominent citizenry of Atlanta. Accordingly to my recollection of the rules of this enthralling game, Henry won by the difference between a flivver and a wheelbarrow.

The gentleman, whose name is emblazoned on more motor driven vehicles than the combined names of all the other people in the world, reached Atlanta shortly after noon Tuesday.

Mayor Key had been forewarned of his coming and was right down there at the Terminal station to meet him with his welcoming smile, telling just as plainly his purpose as if he had worn a ribbon badge of two square yards.

Shock No. 1. Mr. Ford was reported sleeping.

And the hour was 12:08.

All the literature that I've ever read has it these captains of industry that have amassed millions have done so by getting up with the chickens and going to bed right after playing a game of checkers after a frugal supper of crackers and milk.

Like a Rich Man's Son.

And here was Henry, the successful self-made man, the beau ideal of the editor of the American magazine, the Old Campaigner of the efficiency era, sleeping away peacefully at 12:08 p. m. just like some rich man's son who isn't worth a tinker's cuss is wont to do after a very hard early morning.

So the mayor went back to mayoring and about that time Henry yawned and stretched and remarked as how he'd like to see what sort of a town we have, and forthwith and immediately did so, accompanied by Mrs. Ford.

The tidings were broadcasted all over Atlanta by Terminal station officials in a manner that radio experts rich to accomplish.

The chamber of commerce was called.

He's just passed the Terminal hotel, going on Mitchell street toward Whitehall. Mrs. Ford is with him. He has on a gray overcoat and she has on a red hat, "was the information breathlessly given.

The minute men leaped to their guns, Secretary Addicks sounded the tocsin and the prominent citizenry assembled in a trice, which sounds pretty fast.

All Darts Out for Him.

President Foote, ex-President Lee Ashcraft, C. W. McClure and all the rest of them darted out looking for the Ford.

"There goes a gray overcoat," said Robert C. Alston.

"Hush," said Mr. McClure. "You can't tell by a gray overcoat whether it's Henry Ford or Frank B. DuPre."

More red hats appeared on the streets of downtown Atlanta than are shown in the taking of the Bastille in a movie.

Nobody ever realized before how prevalent red is.

So finally the committee gave up for the time being and got whatever satisfaction there is in leaving cards at the front door of Mr. Ford's private car.

MANY GEORGIA
CITIES ON TOUR OF GLEE CLUB

Athens, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) Many of Georgia's leading cities—Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta, Griffin and others—are included in the itinerary of the University of Georgia Glee and Mandolin club, announced today by President Marion Sheffield, of Atlanta.

The season opens with a performance in Gainesville on the evening of April 10, and from there the club moves to Atlanta, Griffin and nine other cities in the tour, thus covering twelve cities other than Athens.

The performance of the club at Athens April 23, the week-end of the spring festivities and dances at the university, will mark the end of the tour, and indications point to this being one of the biggest week-ends in the history of social seasons at the Georgia college.

The complete itinerary of the Georgia Glee club follows: April 10, Gainesville; April 11, Atlanta; April 12, Griffin; April 13, LaGrange; April 14, Columbus; April 15, Americus; April 16, Waycross; April 17, Dalton; April 18, Savannah; April 19, Brunswick; April 20, Brunswick; April 21, Savannah; April 22, Augusta; April 23, Athens.

The University Glee club this year is composed of 45 men, including the business manager, his two assistants and the faculty adviser. The Glee club proper is composed of 21 men, and the instrument club, for a number of years known as the Mandolin club, has 20 members. The instrumental club this year has an eleven-piece orchestra which is expected to be one of the popular features.

SEEK TO IMPEACH
CLARKSTON MAYOR;
WIFE IN COUNCIL

Impeachment proceedings against E. L. Waggoner, mayor of Clarkston, were instituted by the town council at a meeting Monday night, according to word received Tuesday from W. B. Beauchamp, clerk of the council. The charges against the mayor, which resulted in the inauguration of proceedings against him, were made several weeks ago and accuse him of exceeding his authority in accepting costs in police court.

Other charges of violating the city charter and in not keeping accurate accounts of the affairs of the city were also brought. Mayor Waggoner stated Tuesday night that he was not yet ready to make an answer to the allegations against him, but intimated that he would make a vigorous fight in court.

The wife of Mayor Waggoner, who is a member of council, has upheld her husband. She voted against the impeachment proceedings, as well as against the motion made last week to appoint a committee to investigate the charges against him.

NEGLECT OF DUTY

tailed description of the raid by Rolfe Edmondson, a newspaperman, who accompanied Shaw and other officers on the hunt.

Edmondson testified that the search was made thoroughly and systematically. He said that the two victims, on whose complaint the search was made, were unable to point out the rooms in which they had been fleeced of $11,000.

Guilt of Neglect.

Shaw was declared guilty of a charge of neglect of duty in connection with his failure to investigate the gambling den at 49 1-2 Central avenue after Assistant Chief E. L. Jett had called his attention to it. The gambling hall was afterward raided by Solicitor Boykin and his associates.

Chief Jett testified that an electrician had informed him that certain wiring arrangements being installed at the Central avenue rooms indicated that something wrong was being planned, and that it bore the earmarks of a gambling den. He said he instructed Lieutenant Shaw to investigate the report.

In his statement to the board, Lieutenant Shaw admitted that Chief Jett called his attention to the Central avenue place, and that it "slipped his mind" until sometime thereafter, he recalled it when some of the detectives happened to mention that a crap game had been raided at the address.

Boykin on Stand.

Solicitor Boykin testified under oath for the first time since the inception of the bunco investigation. He had been requested by the board to produce any information he might have regarding the charges pending against the officer before the board.

The solicitor related the details of the raids at the West Peachtree street and Central avenue places, at which cards, dice, liquor, narcotics, swindling equipment, etc., were confiscated.

Several documents purporting to show that a local bank carried a substantial account for Shaw's family until the bunco probe began were offered by the solicitor "for what they were worth," but were ruled on as irrelevant by Judge O. Wood, assistant city attorney, who conducted the police board trial.

Report T. Jones represented Shaw. He introduced but few witnesses, and following completion of his testimony, Mayor Key asked him for his theory as to the whole bunco investigation.

"My theory is that it is cheap politics from beginning to end," he replied.

Commissioner W. C. Stradley sought to have the charges against Shaw dismissed on the ground that he had been acquitted of various charges in the courts, but other members of the board pointed out that the board was trying the officer on altogether different charges.

Patrolman Paul Morgan was found guilty of charges of neglect of duty for failing to arrest Gladys Rogers, an escaped white woman convict, when a jurymen identified her at the Terminal station several weeks ago. The chief was directed to resign and him.

Thirty-five applicants were placed on the list of supernumerary police.

After his conference with Mr. Campbell, Speaker Gillett said he was inclined to think that it would be just as well not to open the way for the democrats to offer a motion on the bill, which would have to be permitted unless the rules were suspended. He called attention that in their minority report the democrats had urged that the bonus be paid by an excess profits tax and increased surtaxes.

Asked if a motion to re-enact those taxes would be germane, since the bill had no tax provision, Mr. Gillett said he might rule that it was not, but then probably would be an appeal from his decision, which would bring the matter of those taxes to a vote of the house.

After their failure to get the bill up yesterday under a suspension of the rules, those in charge of the legislation appeared to be highly gratified that their original plan finally had been approved. They anticipated little or no difficulty in enacting their program on the floor and believed that by Thursday night the problem with which they have been wrestling for several months would be off their hands.

POSTPONING ACTION.

Savannah, Ga., March 21.—(Special.)—Chauncey Depew, ex-senator, was a visitor for a short time in Savannah today. He declared that the bonus plan should be postponed. He expressed himself in favor of the four-power treaty.

Leoni's L'Oraculo
Has First Hearing
At Opera Concert

A surprisingly large number of men are beginning to find that they can afford to take an hour and a half on Tuesday mornings to hear the opera concerts being presented under the auspices of the Atlanta Woman's club at the Howard theater, and so these matinees are no longer all feminine.

There is nothing truer in music than that any composition worth a second hearing grows more pleasing as one grows more familiar with it.

Franco Leoni's opera, "L'Oraculo," which has never been presented in Atlanta, was the program Tuesday, and nobody in the large audience could fail to feel at its close that he was much better prepared for a full enjoyment of it when it is presented by the Metropolitan Opera company in April after this first hearing in concert form.

Keen Enjoyment.

The fact that the Leoni work, grand opera, but only in one act, sounds frequently and amazingly like Puccini in his Madame Butterfly period, hardly detracted from enjoyment of it by the Atlanta people who have always shown their leaning to the music of Puccini.

The Howard orchestra, with Enrico Leide conductor and director of the opera concerts, afforded a very adequate idea of what may be expected of the Metropolitan company's production.

The singing of George McNulty provided another proof that Atlanta has some exceedingly good singers, and that the residence of many good teachers in Atlanta is making for some very well-trained voices. Mr. McNulty's voice, a tenor, is exceptionally agreeable in quality and used with much ease.

Charles Chalmers' voice has long been popular with Atlanta concertgoers, and they found it in specially good form Tuesday.

Romantic Duet.

Mrs. B. O. Carlton sang very delightfully with Mr. McNulty, the romantic duet, in ultra Puccini style, between the lovers in the opera. Mrs. Charles Chalmers, who might be called the impresario of the opera concerts, is being cordially congratulated on her success in bringing together such a satisfying group of singers who have been doing the solo work.

Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson again reading the book of the opera, presented the sonnet melodrama in illuminating fashion. She wore a picturesque costume of the old Chinese quarter in San Francisco, where the story was laid.

Mr. Leide and the orchestra again offered an additional treat in the performance of an extra selection which this time was Massenet's "Scenes sacrees." The dreamy and tender character of "Under the Linden" was well translated, and there was most pleasing diversion in the programmatic "Sunday Evening in the Village."

LOUISE DOOLY.

Carolyn Cobb Entertainers
Will Present Miss Hinman

The Carolyn Cobb community entertainers will present Miss Ruth Hinman in a demonstration of the Dalcroze Eurythmics this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Steinyway hall, Phillips & Crew.

Miss Hinman studied this work at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston and she has taught it to a class in Cambridge, Mass. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Hinman, of this city, and has in her home had the background of musical and artistic appreciation. Her special preparation has fitted her to demonstrate this work sincerely and truthfully. While she has been doing this work in Atlanta for only a few months, it has met with quick response and is already most successful.

The Dalcroze eurythmics develops freedom and poise in bodily expression, an understanding of music from its rhythmic expression and a type of dance which is a real art-form, developing in the pupil dancing which is beautiful and pure.

Misses Sarah F. Hill, Dorothy Jones, Kathryn Behnemann and Mary E. Brown will act as ushers. The public is cordially invited.

Maxwell-Walker.

Miss Frances Elizabeth Maxwell and Robert Hall Walker were married at 4:30 o'clock, March 11, at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Jasper M. Tunlin, of Marietta, uncle of the groom, officiating.

The bride wore a becoming gown of dark blue tweed, her corsage being of orchids and valley lilies. Only the immediate families and a few special friends were present. After the ceremony they were given a buffet supper at their apartment by Mrs. Lillie Hall Walker, mother of the groom.

Mrs. Walker is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Maxwell, of Lithia Springs. Mr. Walker is the only son of Mrs. Lillie Hall Walker, of this city, and for several years has held a responsible position with the Coca-Cola Bottling company.

Miss Hays Given Bridge-Tea.

Miss Margaret Hays, bride-elect of April, was honor guest at a bridge-tee given for her by Mrs. W. C. White, at the home of her mother on Clairmont avenue.

The prize for top score was a Bohemian glass candy jar. The consolation was a silver lemon fork. Miss Hays was given a piece of lingerie.

Mrs. C. L. Weekes and Mrs. Myrick Clements assisted in entertaining.

Alliance Francaise To Meet Thursday.

The meeting of the Alliance Francaise will be held next Thursday afternoon at the Carnegie library at 3:30 o'clock, and Madame Slifer will speak of the French phonetic and will point out common errors made in conversation.

Madame Slifer will read a chapter of "The Dictionary of Errors," of which she is author.

Mrs. Downman's Tea For Mrs. Lyons.

Mrs. Charles Downman will entertain at tea this afternoon at the East Lake Country club in compliment to Mrs. John F. Lyons, of Texas, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mrs. Downman's guests will include members of the executive board.

Parties for Miss Timmons.

Miss Sarah Timmons, of Kansas City, Mo., is the guest of Misses Jeter at their home on West Peachtree street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Curry will entertain members of their club at an informal dance Friday evening for Miss Timmons.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Jones will entertain for Miss Timmons.

Mrs. Robert Jones, Sr., will give luncheon for this visitor, the date to be announced later.

THE GREAT SPRING ADVENTURE

Have you bought your spring hat, the success without which all the rest yet or is the great adventure still before you?

I do not think there is any season of the year when the instinct to cast off old garments and clothe oneself in something different is stronger. Perfectly natural, surely, since Dame Nature sets the style and supplies the cosmic urge with her elixir of spring. And, of course, the most important part of the wardrobe, the touchstone, chance of a woman's hat isn't a little thing. It's a very big thing and it involves so many factors.

What the Woman Must Think Of. Here's what a woman must do when she buys a hat.

She must get it within her means (or if not within her means at least within whatever sum she can wheedle out of her husband).

She must have it becoming (I should have put that first, shouldn't I?). She must get a hat enough like what the others are wearing so that no one will think she bought it last year. She must get one sufficiently different from what the others are wearing so that she won't see half a dozen almost like it on the way home. She must get one that will go with her brown tweed suit; her blue tricot dress and her lavender crepe. She must find one simple enough to wear down town shopping and at the same time dressy enough to wear to church and teas and bridge parties.

Hats for All Gowns. Of course I am speaking of the average woman, the you-and-I woman who buys one hat per season (when she doesn't try to make last year's do). I have heard of women who bought half a dozen hats per season—a sport hat, a tailored hat, a hat for the tea-dansant, a theater hat, and two or three odd hats for various gowns. In fact, I have a bowing acquaintance with one such and have often heard the tale of her glories passed on by a sister-in-law who is divided between the anguish of envy and the excitement of shining in her reflected lavishness ("she thinks nothing, my dear, of going into J's and picking up a hat for $35 or $40 when she already has four or five hats and saying: "That would look awfully well with my folly crepe, send it out").

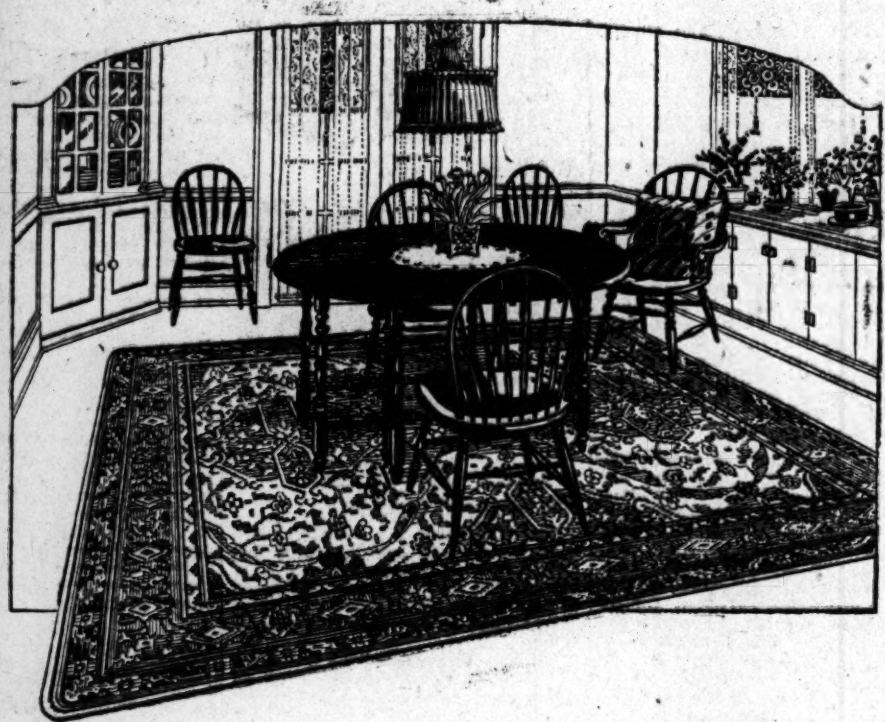

Advice for Friend Husband. I feel toward this tale somewhat as I did when, as a child, a friend of mine told me she and her cousin were to have a penny a day apiece to spend all the time her cousin was visiting her. I didn't like to think she was lying, but it did seem to me she must be stretching the truth a little. However, that does not alter the case of the average woman who, if she has not already done so, is soon to set forth on her great springtime adventure. Here's wishing her luck and here is reminding her husband who loves her to remember that it is no light matter, this selection of a hat that may be a joy or a misery every time she puts it on—to be willing to help if he can, and at any rate to take that interest without which the joys of married life lose half their savor.

Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

Linoleum Rugs are handsome and save housework

RUGS of Armstrong's Linoleum are colorful and durable. They are waterproof and can be washed. A damp rag and a little soap will remove all traces of spilled grease.

Dust and dirt are removed instantly. The rug lies flat on the floor. Its weight keeps it where you want it. It is a protection as well as a decoration to the floor.

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs are specially suitable for use in bedrooms, kitchens, hallways, nurseries, and dining-rooms.

These rugs can be supplied in four sizes up to 9x12 feet. They are made in a pleasing choice of beautiful printed patterns, also an inlaid design, the colors running through to the back.

Any good furniture or department store can show you Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs. They are delivered in substantial pasteboard containers with the edges and corners protected from injury.

To be sure you are getting the genuine Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs, look for the burlap back with the Circle "A" trademark.

All Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs are guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Our booklet, "Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs," shows colorplates of many distinctive designs. It will be sent free on request.

Survey Leaders Will Speak Today At School Luncheon

The four high schools of Atlanta, Girls' and Boys' High, Tech and Commercial High, will act as hosts at the luncheon to be given today at Girls' High school at 12:30 o'clock.

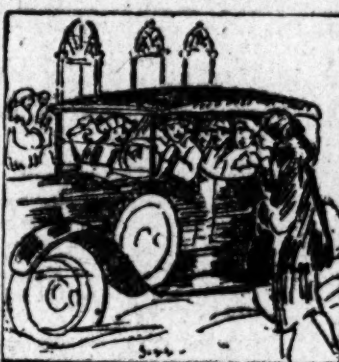

Dr. H. L. Englehart and Dr. George D. Strayer, of the Columbia university survey commission, will be special honor guests and will make addresses on the recent survey of the Atlanta public school system. W. A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, will introduce the speakers.

A musical program, in which the Glee clubs of the Girls' and Commercial High schools will take part, will be an additional feature.

Every detail of the luncheon has been planned by the combined domestic science classes of Girls' High and Commercial High schools, members of which will also prepare and serve the luncheon. Covers will be laid for 150 guests.

The Housewife's Idea Box

To Keep Mice Away From Books. Mice seem to love books as much as some humans. Therefore when books are put away on shelves and are not often handled mice are apt to gnaw at them. To prevent this lay some gum camphor on the shelves among the books. It will keep the mice away.

Some unsophisticated person finds that women smuggle things into this country tied around their waists. The discoverer is evidently a person who makes no study of human nature and whose knowledge of the human figure does not go beyond circus bills. So small a woman's waist would betray her to the authorities.—Buffalo Evening Times.

Pan-American Conference of Interest To Women of Two Entire Continents

Mrs. Richard Edwards, of Indiana, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters. Mrs. Charles S. Woodruff, of Maryland, chairman of convention committee of the National League of Women Voters.

Women of two continents are planning a "peace-table" all their own. This conference will be a Pan-American gathering and has been called by the National League of Women Voters as an important part of its annual convention which will take place in Baltimore, April 20 to 29.

The object of the gathering is to promote international friendship between the peoples of two continents. At the public meetings will be international speakers including Secretary of State Hughes, Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador; Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American union, and distinguished Latin-Americans. A feature of the program will be round-table meetings of special interest to women—child welfare, educational, women in industry.

State Officials Co-Operate. Invitations sent through the state department to Latin-American governments asking that delegates be appointed, have met with a cordial response. Besides official government delegates, women's organizations will send representatives, and prominent women from South and Central America, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Mexico and Canada will take part in the conference. Mrs. Maud Wood Park, president of the league, has received enthusiastic endorsement of the plan from groups of Latin-American women who have asked for invitations.

"The conference will be unique," declared Mrs. Richard Edwards, first vice president of the league, in announcing plans for the gathering. "There have been conferences of men in the past, and conferences of women. There have been Pan-American conferences on trade relations and for scientific discussions. But a Pan-

American conference of women, with no idea of business profit, and called separately from any conference of men, is a new idea.

International Friendliness. "There are infinite possibilities for international friendliness in such a meeting. Held so soon after the conference on limitation of armaments, it will turn the thoughts of all the America towards the idea of closer association between the Pan-American countries, and toward a hitherto undeveloped channel for such association—the friendly interest of like-minded women."

Mrs. Charles S. Woodruff, chairman of the convention committee, reported great enthusiasm in Baltimore in connection with the Pan-American plan. "We find interest on every side," said Mrs. Woodruff. "Men and women citizens of Baltimore are co-operating in every way possible to make the conference a great international event."

The Constitution's Patterns

A NEW STYLE OF "LINGERIE."

5511. Fashion is ever busy evolving new ideas for pretty undergarments. This style speaks for comfort and simplicity, provides a very convenient combination garment that may serve as a "slip." Tulle with embroidery or pique finished with hemstitching would be the "newest" development for this model. It is good, too, for batiste or crepe.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: small, 34-36; medium, 36-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3 yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

SOMETHING NEW IN CORSET COVER.

2768. Here is a style easy to adjust, comfortable to wear and easy to launder. It is fine for lawn, linen, batiste, crepe, crepe de chine and washable satin.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size 34 requires 1 3/8 yards of 36-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A PLEASANT BIT OF LINGERIE.

3045. This comfortable model is lovely for crepe, silk, lawn, nainsook, dimity or satin. For trimming one may have bands of embroidery and edging or lace with insertion to match.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires 2 5/8 yards of 36-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or 3c and 2c stamps.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week
The Valley of the Sun

By William McCoy

Next Week: "Peter the Brzen," by George F. Worts

Their eyes boring into the darkness the sisters watched, and suddenly the glowing shape flashed among the fantastic trees, advancing in a weird, flying dance. The cry, sounding like a demoniac shriek of victory, rang again and again while the fearsome thing of light danced closer—and then a roar split the night, a booming chorus of defiance, and the weird shape wobbled crazily, then crashed down. Peering from the window the girls saw the glowing shape lying in a heap, saw a shadow slipping toward it.

"Ye ain't dead yet, huh?" Rainbow chuckled, cautiously approaching the luminous object. In the light from the glowing object the watchers saw him pick up the remains of the "ghost" and start toward the house. "Wasn't that a beauty?" he gave credit where it was due as he entered. "I don't know how they snakes turned it loose, but they had sure thing on a pole, cause the pole is out there!" and he held up the object, laughable in the light of the lamp which Marjorie lit.

"It's just a long sack with a face painted on near the top end of it," he mused, "but let's see what makes her shine."

Turning the sack-like effigy wrong side out, he found a small electric flashlight, still shining brightly, and fastened to the inside of the top, just beneath the spot where the cord was attached which suspended the "ghost" from the pole.

"I want I had shot a little lower," Rainbow mused. "Betsy hit the pole, but if I had just give her the chance she might o' hit the reptile holdin' it!"

A few days later, Marjorie noticed a horseman approaching. Mounted upon a magnificent bay horse, the man rode up to the end of the field near where she was working, lifted his sombrero, and called a pleasant greeting. When she answered he introduced himself as Jose Hernandez, foreman of the Circle D Ranch, and while he spoke enthusiastically of her growing crops she studied him. He was darkly handsome in his silver-trimmed leather chaps, dark soft shirt and fine sombrero. He said nothing to which she could possibly take offense, did not presume to dismount or to enter her field, just paused after the custom of the open for pleasant greeting and comment. But even while she answered him in kind a vague uneasiness grew within her, and when he turned his horse and galloped away her intuition told her that he was the mysterious rider who had followed her that day on the upper ranges.

The harvest came on early, but it was a good harvest, the crops from Marjorie's acreage overflowing her tiny barn, so that she hauled part of her kaffir corn to Jerry's and stored it there. And while she worked Marjorie sang or hummed, for the news was good from over there, and every one of her acres had done its duty.

Then on a morning Rainbow Ben and Cal came careening through the sunshine, Sarah and Betsy booming in a triumphant chorus as he stopped before each home and shouted that the war was over.

Forgetting everything else in their overwhelming joy, the people of the valley again turned their faces toward Mirage, singing and cheering as they drove into the little desert town just as the people of every town and hamlet in America were singing and cheering. Hernandez and his hired riders came, and as the hours wore on cowboys, miners, prospectors came hurrying from the east and north and south. While some filled the straggling street with wild feats of horsemanship or ringing whoops and booming reports, hymns of praise and thanksgiving rolled out to mingle in the desert's triumphant chorus of victory.

When at last the rejoicing people turned homeward, three thin columns of smoke far up the valley joined the sweeping slope with the limitless sky, and the hearts of Marjorie and Lenore seemed to cease to beat, while their smiling lips grew quiet, grim, flashing their teeth in a grin, Marjorie drove furiously, the spring was on bumping and pitching as she led a line of racing vehicles over the rough, winding road.

As they tore on the flames leaped up—then slowly subsided, and every man and woman in the wildly racing wagons and hackboards knew that the fire was in Mirage Meadows. On and on Marjorie cruelly forced her team, the wagon seeming to fly in the wake of the madly rushing horses. Turning into their homestead they dashed on with the others pounding behind—and stopped—and the sisters stood together, white lipped, beside the smoldering pile of ashes which had been their home.

The men who had followed looked in grim silence from the smoldering ruins of the little home to the blackening embers marking the spots where barn and poultry house had stood. The harvested crops stored in the barn, and the dry fodder piled against it were gone, and homeless turkeys and chickens and their here and there in their flight. Clothing, household goods, all the personal treasures which had once belonged to Marjorie and Lenore, except what they were wearing or had with them, were ashes.

"You'll come with us, of course," Mary Harkness urged Marjorie and Lenore.

"Yes, you gals go along with Mary an' Lem," Rainbow advised, taking a hand of each of them in his rough old fingers. "I'll be with you to Jerry's an' I'll come o' that stuff you stored in his barn, an' I'll feed yer chickens an' turkeys, an' in the mornin' you kin come back an' plan what to do."

"We—we haven't the money to build—to start all over again," Marjorie choked, turning so that she faced him, his eyes begging his for strength. "But we—"

"It ain't startin' all over agin'," he interrupted. "It's mighty nigh like it, mighty nigh like it, but it's goin' on! Mornin' it's harchin' then startin' was, but you're goin' on, o' course. In the mornin' we'll sort o' fixer a way. You come down when Lem comes, an' the mornin' after a way. 'Til he here, she promised, gripping his old hand tightly, and he helped the girls into the wagon.

When Marjorie opened the next morning with Lem she found several men carefully sifting the ashes. The larger pieces of unconsumed debris had been collected and piled at one side, and Jim Burton was carefully saving every piece of metal or heat-twisted metal or bit of crockery.

poultry, she washed them, and placed them, freshly filled, in the shade of Joshua trees. She got some of the grain which Rainbow had brought from Jerry's, and rounded up her flock. Finding no more work for her hands, she watched the men.

"Did you have anythin' o' Jerry's?" Rainbow asked at last, looking up from the inspection of all the articles, or rather remnants of articles salvaged.

"We had had his spurs, and his guns, and—"

"I thought so," Rainbow interrupted. "They was a mighty fine pair o' spurs, an' they ain't here! They ain't nothin' here that could a' been them. An' his guns is gone, too!" he announced.

CHAPTER VII.
Hearts of the Desert.

Rainbow sent Marjorie home with Lem. When she set out of sight the other men, began shoveling the grain which Rainbow had brought from Jerry's, and rounded up her flock. Finding no more work for her hands, she watched the men.

"You boys show up early in the mornin'," he urged as the others departed.

Very early the next morning Rainbow drove his long-team and heavy wagon to the knot in the grove of Joshua's, and stopped beside Jerry's house. He had been there only a few minutes when Jim Watson rode up, and then Jim Burton and Ed Squire, followed in turn by Pete Nellis, Henry Hughes, Mike Dowd, Art Blake and Joe Farmer. With picks and shovels they undermined the corner of Jerry's strong foundation of redwood beams, placed Rainbow's heavy wagon jacks in the holes and jacked up the house. Blocking up the little building as they lifted it, as housewives do, they raised it and slid it on the big freight wagon. The long team stepped forward together and the little home rolled to Mirage Meadows. Reversing the process of loading the men lowered the house into place, tamped the ground around the sills—and it appeared to have been built where it stood.

The others hurried back to Jerry's to carefully take his barn to pieces, for, because of the way it was built and its size, it could not be moved otherwise. Rainbow was making ready to follow them with his wagon when Marjorie and Lenore came into view, driving Jerry's team. Old Rainbow watched from behind his wheel mules, and when the girls first saw the house he thought they were going to stop—but an instant later they were coming on as fast as the team could travel.

"Rainbow!" called Marjorie as she stopped in front of the house and he came from behind the mules. Both the girls tried to speak as he reached his hands to help them down from the wagon, but the words would not come. "We had no right to take—Jerry's house!" Marjorie protested when they stood together.

"I knew you would find a way!" Lenore whispered.

"Oh, Rainbow!" you are so good to me," cried Rainbow. "Why, honey, I was jes' savin' my hide! The night Jerry went away he told me that if I didn't—didn't sort o' keep an eye on you gals he'd—well, it was plenty what he promised me!"

"I see—God bless you—your hide!" exclaimed Marjorie, laughing and crying at the same time, and holding him tighter.

"I got to go," now," Rainbow released his arms. "You gals go on in an' git settled, while we move the barn."

Before another sun had set the barn had been moved and set up in its new location, and the part of her crops which Marjorie had stored in it were hauled down and again placed under its roof.

As time went by and nothing untoward happened, the people went about their work as usual. But the men had not forgotten Jerry, and Rainbow asked for a warrant which would enable him to legally search the premises of the Circle D Ranch. When the warrant came he had his posse ready.

With the other men of the valley stationed around the ranch headquarters, and with Lem Harkness, Jim Burton and Sim Watson with him, Rainbow rode up to the long, low house at one end of the quadrangle of barns, bunk houses and houses of the breeds that Vogel employed on the ranch.

Herdling the breeds into a line against a building, they demanded them, and Rainbow left Sim Watson to guard the unruly group while he entered the house with Jim and Lem. Going through every room in the long building quickly, and finding no one except a comely brown girl, they took her to where Sim was guarding the men, and then rapidly searched every room and building on the place—but no sign of Vogel—and they were not foolish enough to ask the breeds where he was.

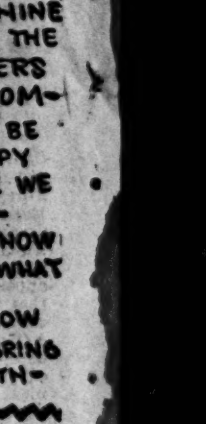

The brown girl for a minute searched through the house again, sifting the contents of every room with eyes wide enough to indicate the various rooms, and led them from one to another, finally to one she announced as the bedroom of Jose Hernandez—a fact quickly proven by old letters found in a desk and by finding clothing which the desert men remembered seeing him wear. Rainbow stopped, discouraged, baffled—and his eyes wandered here and there, searching to pause upon a pair of spurs lying on a little table. "Then his gaze moved on, studiously ignoring the fact that he was mistaken," he said to the girl. "I didn't see Hernandez, but I'd sort of believe in him, believe in his boss here."

"He's gone three days," she told him frankly.

"When he come back?" asked Rainbow in apparently friendly interest. "Do not know—and Juan, the chief vaquero, he does not know."

The girl's eyes grew darker with fright as she watched the grim chance in Rainbow's face. Picking up the spurs he turned to her.

"These are Jerry's," he said, stolen from the girl's house the day it was burned! This is Hernandez's room. He was in Mirage all that day. It ain't plain to me yet—but we want him!"

Lenore seemed to be fading slowly, but brightened when a letter came from Jerry saying he would come home soon. And Rainbow had a letter from Captain Stanley announcing that work on the dam would soon be resumed.

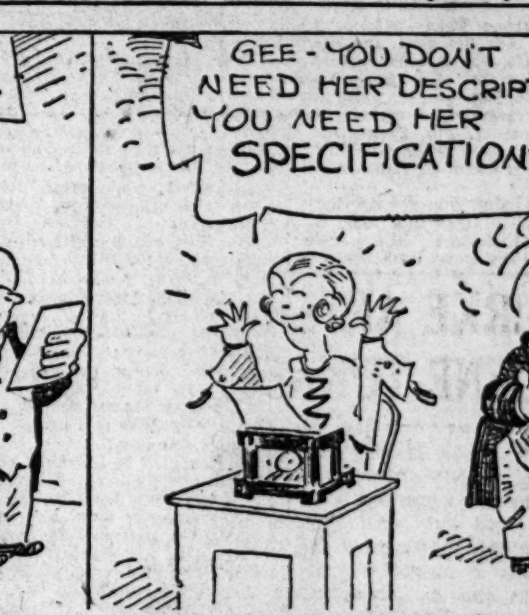

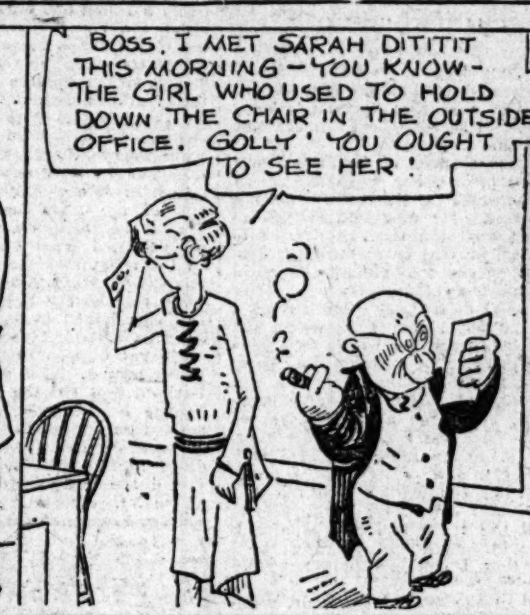

home!" he exclaimed huskily. Then he turned to gallop back on his old legs, his spurs jingling a joy-dance while he hopped about the postoffice in the general store, demanding to know if there was not a letter for Lenore, and followed Rainbow to the feet. Running in, Marjorie called, but turned in alarm when the door slammed behind her, then stood for an instant as if life, hope, all, had left her.

Days and weeks of searching and watching by Rainbow had failed to uncover the slightest trace of either Wolf Vogel or Hernandez. Since that day of the fire nothing sinister had happened in the valley, and the people were calm, but held themselves ready for anything which might come. But the finding of Jerry's spurs in Hernandez's room in spite of the fact that Hernandez had been in Mirage all the day of the fire, coupled with the mysterious disappearance of both Hernandez and Vogel, kept Rainbow hunting grimly with the assistance of Lem and the others.

The new year soon brought Captain Stanley. Rainbow summoned a crew of men, and the camp below the dam site was partially reconstructed. Other men came to join the engineer, assistants, construction foremen, mechanics, cooks and a storekeeper, followed in turn by a carload of Mexican laborers, the only kind to be had on the desert just then.

One day Rainbow went for his mail and received a letter. His wrinkled old face glowing, he hurried outside to read it alone. His eyes hurried over the lines on the single page in an unbelieving daze. But when he read it again carefully, as if to convince himself, he suddenly charged into the street where Cal saddled.

"Call! Look!" he whooped, holding up the letter. "Jerry's back in the old U-nited States! He's coming

Fearless Ferns Kayoes Kelly In Fourth Round at Legion Show

Ferns Battles Way Back Into the Good Graces of Atlanta Fans—Budd to Meet Stribling.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

A lot of people missed a lot of fighting by not attending the American Legion show last night at the Fourth street club. It was one of those fight cards that fight fans dream about seeing, a fight card on which very man tried his level best to come to destroy utterly the position and it is a remarkable fact that more than half of them succeeded.

The evening's entertainment started out with a clean knockout. It ended with one. Then there was a technical knockout in one fight and in another there was practically a double knockout as both combatants were dead as door nails but still glaring at each other in a fine combative spirit that had the crowd howling.

There was more action to the square inch in those four bouts than there has been in the last five fight cards combined, and as fate would have it, only about 300 of the faithful were on hand to observe the festivities.

Ferns Comes Back.

Fearless Ferns battled his way back into the good graces of Atlanta. He was matched against a grizzly bear-sort of a looking fellow from Birmingham named Battling Kelly. Kelly wanted to destroy utterly the position and it is a remarkable fact that more than half of them succeeded.

Jack Curley, the promoter of wrestling bouts, having abandoned New York as a field of endeavor because of the rolling American and Chuck Virginia, is expected to return here for the open six boxing season and give chase to Gene Tunney, the American light heavyweight champion, and Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, New Orleans critics have declared Burke "in" on the upper coterie of light heavyweights.

Louis Firpo, the first South American fighter to fight in these parts, will probably get some good matches in the smaller clubs around New York in the next few weeks in recognition of his knockout of Sallio Matted, a former nary champion, in Newark, N. J. Monday night. Firpo unknocked a sincere line of punches and proved himself a real contender for an unknown heavyweight. Matted was not exactly a set-up, as he was clever enough to step into Tarzan Larkin, the current champion, and knock Tarzan apart from his whiskers.

Harvard's spring football practice will soon get under way. The candidates for the 1922 varsity have been ordered to report to Coach Bob Fisher Thursday for an organization meeting.

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, is a shipmate of the Penn relay team on the Aquitania, bound for England. The ship shore off Monday carrying two parties of American athletes, the relay squad and Kilbane and his entourage, which includes a couple of American unknowns who will look for work in London prize rings.

Charley Beecher, the New York featherweight, announced that he would follow Kilbane on a later ship in the hope of forcing Johnny into a match in England.

The Penn relay men were a confident outfit as they went aboard the Aquitania, all in the best of shape, and intending to take only light work out with the medicine ball on voyage. They will race against the relay teams of Oxford and Cambridge April 8, under the auspices of the Athletics club of London. The party was composed of Captain Larry Brown, Seattle; Donald Reed, Philadelphia; Sayman Kerr, Salt Lake City; Elmer McLane, Oklahoma City; John H. Fier, Lansdowne, Pa.; Coach Lawson Robertson, Manager Howard Florde and John T. McGovern, who represents the inter-collegiate A. A. A. as well as Yale, Harvard and Princeton universities. McGovern is commissioned to arrange future athletic connections between these American schools and the leading British universities.

FIRE CAUSES LOSS AT LAGRANGE COLLEGE

LaGrange, Ga., March 21.—(Special.)—Fire, which broke out in one of the LaGrange college buildings late Tuesday evening, did considerable damage before it was extinguished by the fire department.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective fuse and started in one of the music rooms in the main auditorium. Estimated damage is approximately $10,000, which, however, is a guess, as it is still being assessed by insurance.

CRACKERS WIN AND LOSE

BY COLONEL CLUKE.

New Orleans-Bay St. Louis, Miss., March 21.—(Special.)—The Crackers won their first ball game of the season on St. Louisians field here today. The regulars romped over the Yannisians 13 to 1. The game, one-sided, was interesting from the viewpoint of the regulars being almost a half a game and the phenomenal work of "Dutch" Bergman and Art Ritter. The fielding of this pair easily featured. The game at least uncovered one star batsman for the Crackers. The young man is Carlisle, late of the Georgia State league. Carlisle's hitting will not cause Cracker fandom to miss Red Wingo, for Carlisle is a real ball player.

The semi-winners were between Rabbit Palmer and Jack Wallace. It was a whirlwind from start to finish with Palmer pushing the fight and Wallace stopping back and whaling him. It had the crowd on its feet from the start and when the sixth and final going rang, both men were practically flat. During the contest both men were knocked flatter than pancakes, but each one got up smiling.

Jimmy Lewis was no match for the showman Billy DeLoon who is coming along nicely, and the bout was stopped in the second round.

Pham Youngster Good.

The feature of the evening, though, was the showing of Claude Wilson, the Birmingham fighter who knocked Edmond Powell cold in a pair of rounds. This little Alabama man is a little Terry McGovern who fights and fights furiously. Homer tried to box him, but couldn't.

Atlanta would not see a lot more of Wilson. He was announced from ringside that the next show would bring together Young Stribling and Battling Kelly. Kelly wanted to destroy utterly the position and it is a remarkable fact that more than half of them succeeded.

Confidentially, Budd told me he is going to a hole here in Young Stribling. He says he knows he can take the Macon flash.

The battle ought to pack the club.

FULTON HIGH BOYS WINS OPENING GAME

BY FRED HANEY.

The Fulton high school nine defeated the Commercial high boys at Briarcliff Park yesterday afternoon in a game which might have proved interesting had the weather been fit for baseball. The score was 6 to 5.

The Fultonites jumped off to an early lead and had run up four scores to none for Commercial at the beginning of the last inning. The Pryor team were prevented with five runs in this inning by the winners, and it seemed for a while as if the game would be won by Commercial, but on a couple of hits and an error runners scored the game was won.

Gay was on the mound for the winners and pitched good ball, especially in the ninth, when he scattered hits during the game. Kelly was the hitting star of the day for Fulton, getting a double and single.

Only three letters are reporting to the practices with which to form a nucleus for this season's squad. Jenkins, who made his letter in the season of 1921, but was prevented from training last season on account of illness, is a dependable man in the middle distance work. Boyd is leading the competition in the distance and the high and low hurdles.

Lawrence Case, the sensational sprinter of last season, did not return to college this season and his absence in the speed work is sorely felt by the coaches.

Henry Barst, a freshman from Bessemer, who is one of the most promising track men reporting, will be ineligible for intercollegiate competition this season on account of the freshman rule. Race was a wonder under man in the high school meet held at Auburn last season, having placed first in five events single handed.

The Bessemer youngsters, however, will run unopposed in the A. A. U. meet this spring.

Long Roy Cook, a senior, who is making his first bid for the squad, is showing fine development and will with experience together with his long, rangy type make an excellent runner in the hurdles.

Among the newcomers who are displaying the most promise at this time is Robert Locke, star of Barton academy's track squad of last season. Locke captured the Barton program and is working out in the pole vault work this season and promises to make an excellent man before this season closes.

Those showing the most promise in the two weeks workouts are for the 100 and 220 yard, Goodwin and Martin; 440, Earl Wilson and Bill Stoves; 880 yard, Wilson and Jenkins; mile, Jenkins and Stockwell; hurdles, the 120-yard high and the 220-yard low hurdles, Captain DeLoon, Rose, C. P. Cook, and Williams; high jump, Cook and Locke; pole vault, Locke and McDonald; discus and javelin, Grisham, Pearce and Stallings, Javelin, Stallings and Gamble.

G. M. C. PLAYS FIRST GAME

The Columbus, Ohio, team defeated G. M. C. 9 to 8. The Senators drew all the luck in the game for every man they scored was after two men were down. A slow Texas leaguer went third, with the bases full in the third inning, gave them their big lead. They used three pitchers.

G. M. C. made costly errors, besides Vesl gave many bases on balls. The Senators showed up very well, but his came at unfortunate periods and did much to their score. The game drew a good attendance and was played as a good exhibition.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
 Columbus . . . 004 210 029—9 7 3
 G. M. C. . . . 001 010 020—8 4 3
 Batteries—Polelison, Jacoby, Ambrose, Leo; Vesl and Dunn.

Fullerton Dopes First Basemen American League is Superior

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

George Sliker stands out strongly, far in the lead of all the first basemen in the country, and the St. Louis Browns gain the lead in the first day's race of the spring dope to ascertain the comparative strength of the major league clubs. The lead pulled up both in offensive and defensive figures by the St. Louis marvells puts him in a comfortable position ahead of Stuffy McInnis and Doc Judge, with the rest of the American league first sackers trailing. Pittsburgh gains a slight lead in the National league in the comparative study of the first position in the dope, but not enough to boast much about.

The outstanding feature of the study of the first basemen in the two leagues, however, is the remarkable difference in quality of the first basemen of the American and National leagues. The American seems to have corrupted the bulk of the hitting power in this position, and the majority of the top notch men. Perhaps in some other position we may find that the National league leads, but as a matter of fact the first sackers of the older organization show poorly in comparison with their rivals. Admitting that Grimm is a comer and that he may come a long way, the figures indicate a lot of distance between him and the Sliker, the McInnis, the Judges and others of the other circuit.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OUTCLASSED.

The National league is a mediocre bunch at best, and yet they are much better bunched, compared one against the other, than the American leaguers are, and if Philadelphia settles down to one man and keeps him on the first base job, it will be a real development, it may rank as high as second.

There will be little argument among the fans as to the comparative worth of Sliker, McInnis and Judge, or that they rank in that order. It may be argued that on last season's record Judge should be ahead of McInnis, whereas Stuffy is more liable to come in first with Cleveland. He may play great ball than otherwise. He would be much closer to Sliker if he gets into the mood to hustle, and get back with a winning edge. These years may cure him of his indifference and spur him on again. The Athletics must be figured in combination with the first basemen of the American league. In fact, the Mackmen, with Johnston working as he always works, hard and willingly, and Burns will play good ball at Boston. I have been rather disappointed at the news that Duffy intends to keep Harris in the outfield, for he would make much head start in first base and probably will be in a lot of games.

PIPP WELL

There will be a loud wail from the New York Yankee fans when they see that Pipp is not in the lineup. Pipp is a hard worker, a conscientious fellow, always ready to give a great first base. Besides, he has been a considerable figure strength because of the certainty that Ruth will play a lot of games this season as a first baseman. BULLDOGS TAKE BENNING

ATHENS, GA., March 21.—(Special.)

In a game marked with miscues, the Bulldogs poked out the Camp Benning nine here this afternoon in eleven innings, score 5 to 4. At the end of the ninth the score was 4 to 4, and two extra frames were necessary to decide the winner.

Three thousand fans saw the contest, which was really the opener of the season.

Thomas began the game for Georgia but retired in the seventh with the infielders two runs ahead. Pantone, the American lad, took up the pitching burden and had the Benning team safely in check thereafter.

Georgia started off well in the first inning. Cobb, first up, trotted to first on a base on balls, stole second and scored when Honnen, missed Thomson's grounder. Benning came back strong in the fourth, scoring when Nelson secured a hit on Clark, Hutcherson and second baseman, stole second and scored on Nelson's single.

The Bulldogs tied the score in the sixth when Cobb let loose a scorching single, went to second on Thomson's sacrifice, and came home when Hutcherson poked out a one-base clout. The army lads went into the lead again in the seventh on a walk, a single, a hit batsman, and another single to center by Honnen. The score indicated a victory for Benning, but the Bulldogs came back in the eighth when Nelson scored on a sacrifice, and Hutcherson hit for Rawson, advanced Hutcherson, who had hit to Honnen, and was given first on a sacrifice. Benning booted two balls in succession.

Chief Clogs One.

Both teams put a man on first in the tenth, but neither could get their runner around. The Columbus team retired in order in the eleventh, but Cobb shot one to left for a bag in Georgia's half of that inning, took second on a passed ball, and scored when Boney, hitting for Watson, smashed out the needed hit.

The game was one that the spectators enjoyed. The box score indicates how well the ball was handled by the opposition fielders. Rawson caught a good game for the university team.
